INFORMATION FOR CHILD REFUGEES

IN SWEDEN, YOU ARE CONSIDERED TO BE A CHILD UNTIL YOU REACH 18 YEARS OF AGE

In Sweden, it is against the law for anyone to harm a child. But there are those who do so anyway.

- There are people who pretend to be kind To trick children into going with them. They might say that they will help with food, clothes or somewhere to sleep. Then they persuade children to do things against their will.
- If someone exploits a child to earn money, they may be committing a crime called human trafficking or exploitation.
- It is not your fault if this happens to you. No one is allowed to convince or force you to do something against your will! You are not committing a crime.

Important things you should know.

In Sweden, it is illegal to buy sex. It is also illegal to ask children to take photographs of themselves in a state of undress or naked. When this happens, it is the person who buys sex or asks for the photograph who is committing a crime. In Sweden, you are not guilty of any crime if you accept money or other forms of payment for sex.

Some important advice

Never go with or visit the home of someone you or your family don't know.

If someone you don't know contacts you online or via a mobile app and asks you to do something against your will - turn off your computer or phone and tell someone you trust what has happened.

You may be the victim of human trafficking if:

- Someone says that you owe them money because they helped you get to Sweden or for giving you food or somewhere to sleep.
- Someone forces you to work and then takes the money you earn.
- Someone forces you to do things with your body for money, such as have sex, kiss or cuddle.
- Someone threatens, frightens, hits or kicks you to make you do things against your will.
- Someone says that they will hurt your parents, brothers, sisters or friends if you do not do what they say.
- Someone tells you to lie to the police or other adults.
- Someone takes your passport or ID card, your telephone or other belongings in order to control you.
- Someone controls what you do and decides who you can and cannot meet and talk to.

If someone hurts you, tell an adult you trust.

You have the right to tell someone. You are not alone.

It is never your fault
if it happens to you!

● Always tell your parents, another family member or friend or staff at the accommodation centre where you are going or who you are planning to stay with overnight.

● Never hand over personal belongings such as your telephone, passport or ID card to someone you don't know.
